

Living in Faith

Received March 20th, 2008

Over the years, you have heard spiritual seekers discuss the concept of “living in faith.” Growing up, you listened to stories of those who trusted and believed that all would be provided for in their lives. You honored those who knew that if they kept their hearts open and their faces to the Sun of Goodness they would be cared for every day.

But you must remember that having faith does not mean difficulties do not come. Having faith means that after you open your heart and share with the Universe your wishes to follow the Highest Path, you trust that the Universe will honor that Intent and open the way before you.

The reason having faith is so difficult is because some people try to apply the principle of faith to a life that is filled with darkness. For example, some want to be able to live in faith that the Universe will make them rich. They want to live in faith that they can abuse their bodies but still feel healthy and well. The principle of faith does not work that way.

To live in faith means to completely and willingly devote yourself to the process of Evolution and the higher rules of spiritual growth. Living in faith means to fully dedicate every part of yourself to the path of honoring Divinity and Its richness. It is only then that you can open your heart and find the blessings of the Universe flowing into your life. Without first having a foundation of willingness and following it up with a deep the desire to grow, living in faith means nothing.

This is why some who appear to cast off worldly possessions or selfless gains still may not actually be living in faith: because there are other darkneses in their hearts. There may be shadows of guilt or resistance, there may be secret wishes to live in a way that does not align with the Path they are currently walking; and so they are living a lie, they are not living in faith. To live in faith, you must relinquish your sense of belligerent control over your life's direction and, instead, open yourself to a Higher Plan that can create the circumstances which allow you to fully evolve.

Living in faith is not a concept that belongs to a particular spiritual group; it is not a notion that is archaic or applicable only to times past. It is a way of opening your heart to the Blessed Goodness that enriches your life and allowing It to move through you. Living in faith means trusting that the Universe will provide for your every need. It means that once you had done your part, you can then relax and know that the rest will be provided by a loving and powerful Universe.
