

The Law of Inertia

Received March 26th, 2008

It is good for you to surround yourself with things that bring you joy and people who bring a smile to your heart. That lightness draws into your Energy field a Higher Energy that is closer to Us. As a result, even when you are not in spiritual Communion you begin to live your life at a Higher Vibration. We call this experience the Law of Inertia: If you allow yourself to be consumed by positive Energy and Intent, you will find that without any force acting upon It—like your own doubt or fear—you will continue forward in that positive Energy direction.

In the past, some of your experiences were of low vibrations like sadness or difficulty. From those diminished energies, striving to reach up to Us could only bring you so high into hope and Truth. This is how Energy yields more Energy; this is where your responsibility for your reality lies.

Those who do not wish to take any responsibility for their experience will find themselves unwittingly perpetuating the victim consciousness that keeps them mired in difficulty. But if you take responsibility for your state of being, your desire to lift yourself up makes you more accessible to Us. Therefore when We interact with you, you are able to be drawn higher toward Us because you begin at a higher vibration.

Some will hear these words and will not wish to follow because are too set in an identity and perspective of victimhood. But others, who are tired of that sad journey and wish to stop being under the weight of a heavy life, will feel that they have nothing left to lose. In that moment, they will exert just enough force to push the wheels of their potential rolling once more in a positive direction.

Once it begins to roll, it is as if your life rolls easily downhill: the momentum picks up and you are able to flow with more and more grace and less effort. Life then takes on a natural momentum because your ongoing positive vibration is fed by ongoing positive experiences. As a result, it is almost without effort that you begin to live a joyful, peaceful and expansive existence.

- L. Taylor

www.hopeofthenewage.com

Copyright © 2010 by L. Taylor All Rights Reserved
